Over two decades of existence of the igloo publishing house, over 200 issues of the magazine, numerous publications in the already well-known collections, and dozens of events and exhibitions - all these have outlined a cultural opening of the profession and exponentially contributed to the exposure of local architecture. In 2024, igloo promises a future that will be at least as courageous and valuable as its past, illustrated through a new, up-to-date graphic layout for the magazine and the beloved collections, as well as new article series, refreshing our vision of architecture, design, heritage and context. Together, we are building the next 120 igloo issues, as well the following 20 years of architecture, design and heritage.

A Trendsetter in the Romanian Architectural Press

igloo is a multidisciplinary media platform that, for over 20 years, has been showcasing architecture in a formula that harmoniously combines the print, digital and social media formats. The editorial substance, professional opinion and modern graphics make igloo a collector's publication and a trendsetter in the fields of architecture, urban planning, design and visual culture, drawing the attention of all sectors of the creative industry. The articles featured in igloo magazine offer comprehensive material that illustrates the best and most relevant aspects of your company – whether it's a project, a product, a collection or an event.

After 20 years of uninterrupted observation of the Romanian and international architectural phenomenon, igloo magazine has become a landmark on the scene of Romanian periodicals, which makes the association with the igloo brand a guarantee of professionalism and of the care for offering high-quality material.

Sections

A Strategic Communication Instrument

igloo is issued every two months and features, within a generous spectrum of sections and themes, innovations and creative solutions from the fields of architecture, urban planning and design. Each issue also contains a themed dossier, and for 2023, we have planned: Innovative Materials / Religious Architecture / Architecture Publications - Whereto? / On Ruins / Cities on the Decline / Igloo Profile. The contents, the exceptional editorial and graphic presentation, as well as the opening towards the loyal and specialized reader (but also towards the general public) are solid reasons for you to associate your brand with such an emblematic publication.

#218 February - March Innovative Materials

We've always had a keen interest in innovation in all of its forms, as well as in the manner in which it can be directly applied in the field of architecture. Lately, however, we've noticed that many newlydeveloped materials and technologies tend to be ahead of the times, and to conquer horizons that are more belatedly accessed in practice. We've therefore set out to illustrate a selection of "extravagant" materials that will undoubtedly shape the future of architecture.

#219 April - May Religious Architecture

Between tradition and modernity: in this issue's dossier, we investigate the past, present and future of an architectural typology with a major presence in Romania. With the help of several key-voices, we look at religious architecture as a topic worthy of investigation, especially at a time when we are witnessing the "industrialization" of the phenomenon.

#220 June - July Architecture Publications - Where to?

Print versus online seems to be an interminable discussion: many magazines vanished from the market under the powerful threat of the online press. Nevertheless, specialty publications in the field of architecture remain valuable and timeless. We talk to representatives of a few of the most prestigious international publications about transitions, current practices and perspectives.

#221 August - September On Ruins

The ruin constitutes a particular process in the life of a building. The term refers to an abandoned building, lying in a state of decay, and preserving only fragments of the whole. The ruin has a metaphysical presence, an intrinsic value and a particular connection to architecture and the past. We debate the value of ruins through a series of texts and illustrations that problematize the ways in which we relate to ruins.

#222 October - November Cities on the Decline

We are used to keeping up-to-date with the development of the large cities in Romania: Bucharest, Cluj-Napoca, lași, Timișoara, Brașov, Constanța, etc. But what about the small ones? Those whose industries are on the decline? Those whose populations are sharply decreasing, along with investments, real estate developments or future prospects? We propose an ambitious x-ray, an investigative journalism reading of Romania's cities in decline.

#223 December - January Profile

Resuming the series of monographs, this issue brings to light the vision of the profiled architect, revealing the fundamental details at the basis of their projects. We explore their creative principles, marking the essential elements of architectural anatomy through remarkable works, but also through ideas that have not yet taken on a physical shape. The presentation takes on a personal character, through an ample interview. The subject? It's a surprise.

Target Audience, Public & Distribution

igloo magazine is aimed especially towards those interested in the latest in contemporary architecture and culture: architects, designers, real estate promoters, contractors and distributors of materials and accessories, engineers, journalists, artists, companies and organizations involved in the construction or creative industries, business people activating in related fields, professors and students of architecture, urban planning, design, constructions, arts.

The magazine is distributed nationwide, in the Relay/ Inmedio networks (commercial centers), bookstores (Humanitas, Cărturești, Eminescu, Librarium Group), book and specialized fairs (Gaudeamus, Bookfest) and specialized exhibitions. Online: igloo.ro, carturesti.ro, libhumanitas.ro, elefant.ro, libris.ro
